SECRETARY’S REPORT
THE FORTY-NINTH ANNUAL CONVENTION

The Catholic Theological Society of America held its forty-ninth annual convention June 9–12, 1994 at the Sheraton Inner Harbor Hotel in Baltimore. The theme of the convention was “Jesus: The Concrete Foundation of Christianity.” In the opening session on Thursday evening, June 9, Bishop John Ricard, D.D., Urban Vicar of the Archdiocese of Baltimore, welcomed the convention participants to Baltimore. After the first plenary session the evening concluded with a reception hosted by Catholic University of America, the College of Notre Dame of Maryland, Marymount University, Mount Saint Agnes Theological Center for Women, Mount Saint Mary’s College, St. Mary’s Seminary and University, the Theological College of Catholic University, and the Washington Theological Union.

The convention’s Eucharistic liturgy was celebrated in the late afternoon of Saturday, June 11, in the Basilica of the Assumption. President Gerard S. Sloyan was the celebrant. The reception preceding the convention banquet was sponsored by Georgetown University and Loyola College of Maryland. At the end of the banquet President Sloyan read the citation for the John Courtney Murray Award and presented the plaque and medal to Francis A. Sullivan, S.J. of Boston College. Then Archbishop William Keeler, Ordinary of the Archdiocese and the President of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, offered a few remarks to the banquet participants.

The Women’s Seminar in Constructive Theology took place in the afternoon of Thursday, June 9. The Rahner Society Breakfast was held on Saturday morning, June 11. After lunch on Friday, June 10, the Resolutions Committee held a “hearing” for a discussion of resolutions that had been submitted for consideration and action at the annual business meeting. Friday evening featured an Open Forum Session on “The Impact of Jesus Research on Theology,” followed by the President’s Reception for New Members.
The convention program included four plenary sessions including the presidential address.

1. “Jesus and Salvation”
   Address: Elizabeth A. Johnson, Fordham University
   Response: Paul F. Knitter, Xavier University, Cincinnati

               John Howard Yoder, University of Notre Dame
GROUP MEETINGS

This year’s convention marked the transition to the new program format. Besides the plenary sessions with their follow-up seminars and the Women’s Seminar in Constructive Theology and the Open Forum Session, there were simply thirty-eight group meetings scheduled for single sessions in the morning and afternoon of the two full days. Some of these were workshops or presentations arranged only for this year’s convention. Most of the groups will define themselves as research seminars or special interest groups and continue to be scheduled in future conventions.

JOHN COURTNEY MURRAY AWARD

The Catholic Theological Society of America confers its 1994 John Courtney Murray Award for outstanding and distinguished achievement in theology upon a theologian known to his colleagues not only for the quality of his writings and teaching, but also for his personal modesty and the careful and moderate way in which he has always approached difficult and controversial questions.

Born in Boston in 1922 and educated by the Jesuits at Boston College High School, Boston College, Weston College, Fordham University, and the Pontifical Gregorian University in Rome, he was ordained a priest of the Society of Jesus in 1951. From 1956, the year he obtained his doctoral degree from the Gregorian, until 1992 when he became professor emeritus, our honoree served successively as adjunct, extraordinary, and ordinary professor of ecclesiology at the Gregorian. For six years during that period he was Dean of the Faculty of Theology, and for three years, chairman of the Institute of Spirituality. Since 1992 he has been Adjunct Professor of Theology at Boston College. One can only begin to speculate about the number of theologians from all over the world whom he has helped to educate and influence.

In his books and scholarly articles, our honoree, like his fellow Jesuit John Courtney Murray, has never avoided the hard questions nor shaped his conclusions to fit accepted Vatican positions. Nowhere has his intellectual independence been more clearly displayed than in his criticism of a current tendency to collapse the distinction between the definitive and nondefinitive exercise of the Church’s official magisterium, as applied, for example, to the abidingly controversial issue of contraception. His recent article, “The ‘Secondary Object’ of Infallibility” in the September 1993 issue of Theological Studies is a commendable case in point, staking out a position at some variance with that of the Catechism of the Catholic Church. He also took a stand against the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith’s attempt to water down the clear intent of the famous subsistit passage in Lumen gentium regarding the ecclesial nature of non-Catholic Christian churches, and he published in Gregorianum a critical evaluation of the same Congregation’s response to the Final Report of ARCIC I. And this he has done as a longtime resident of Rome and as a faculty member of the city’s most prestigious pontifical university.

The Catholic Theological Society of America is proud to present its 1994 John Courtney Murray Award to Francis A. Sullivan, of the Society of Jesus.

ANNUAL BUSINESS MEETING

President Gerard Sloyan called the annual business meeting to order at 4:50 P.M. on Friday, June 10. Timothy O’Connell served as parliamentarian.

Committee on Admissions

Russell Connors, chair of the Committee on Admissions, gave the committee report. The other members of the committee this year were Cathleen Kaveny, Mary Maher, William Madges, and the Secretary of the CTSA.

From approximately one hundred initial inquiries during the year eighty-five applications were returned. In its review the committee found that all eighty-five were qualified for membership: fifty-eight for active membership and twenty-seven for associate membership. Six of the applicants for active membership had formerly been associate members. Twenty-six of the new members, both active and associate, are women.

The committee recommended that these eighty-five applicants be admitted to the Society. The CTSA members present at the business meeting approved the committee’s recommendation by a round of applause. The President then asked the forty new members present at the convention to stand to be recognized. He then reminded them of the President’s Reception for New Members scheduled for later that evening at 9:45 P.M. in Severn I.

Committee on Nominations

Mary Ann Hinsdale, chair of the Committee on Nominations, gave the committee report. The other members of this committee were Daniel Finn and Michael Joncas. The nominees proposed by the committee were:
Secretary's Report

T. Howland Sanks, Jesuit School of Theology, Berkeley
William Thompson, Duquesne University
Edward Konerman, Loyola University of Chicago
Roger McGrath, St. Mary's Seminary and University
Shawn Copeland, Yale University
Joseph DiNoia, Dominican House of Studies
Christine Gudorf, Xavier University, Cincinnati
Peter Phan, Catholic University of America

There were no nominations from the floor. William Thompson was elected Vice President. Shawn Copeland and Peter Phan were elected Board Members on the second and third ballots respectively. Roger McGrath and Edward Konerman were elected by applause.

Roger Haight becomes the new President for 1994–1995. Elizabeth Johnson becomes the President-Elect. The others who will continue on the Board of Directors are Gerard Sloyan as Past President and Jon Nilson and Robert Schreiter as Board Members.

President-Elect's Report

1. There is an informal policy in convention planning that program participants appear only once in the program. This is not a rigid policy; it admits of exceptions. One of the main exceptions is the case of members from underrepresented groups. They are in demand in many of our interest groups and also want to involve us in their own discussions. So, to a large extent, the informal policy is carried out by the members themselves in agreeing not to participate in more than one part of the program.

2. The conveners of various groups should try not to serve also as moderators. Keeping the roles separate makes possible more participants. The conveners should send the papers and/or reports from their meetings directly to the editor of the Proceedings, Paul Crowley, at Santa Clara University. Finally, the conveners should fill out and return the review forms to the new President-Elect, Elizabeth Johnson.

3. Finally, the President-Elect expressed his thanks to Robert Leavitt of St. Mary's Seminary and University for his help in raising funds for the various special events; to Mary Aquin O’Neill who was in charge of the liturgy and prayer services; to Roger McGrath for his work with the local arrangements committee; and to Michael McGinniss for his very competent convention management.

Treasurer's and Executive Secretary's Report

Treasurer Mary Hines reviewed briefly the report of the Executive Secretary which was also posted on the convention bulletin board.

1. The 1995 convention will mark the fiftieth anniversary of the CTSA. The convention will be held at the Hyatt Grand Central Hotel in New York. Edward Zuchowski of St. John's University has agreed to chair the local arrangements committee. Volunteers are needed for this committee.

2. The registered participants in this 1994 convention number between 450 and 470. This makes this convention the largest one ever.

3. The Executive Secretary expressed special thanks to Roger McGrath, Mary Aquin O'Neill, and Robert Leavitt who helped so very much toward the success of this convention.

4. The Treasurer indicated that she had reviewed the financial report prepared by the Executive Secretary. The past year was a very good year for the Society financially. This financial report will appear in the Proceedings. Copies were available if any members wished to see it during the convention.

Vice President's Report

1. The 1995 convention will take place June 8 to 11 at the Hyatt Grand Central in New York. The theme of the convention will be "Evil and Hope." The speakers for the three plenary sessions will be David Tracy, Susan Ross, and Jon Sobrino. Michael Scanlon is chairing a committee that will plan some special celebrations for the anniversary.

2. James Walter, the chair of the Committee on Research and Publications, came to the podium to give a brief report from that committee. The other members of the committee are David Power, Joann Wolski Conn, and Todd Whitmore. During the past year the committee conducted a feasibility study of a proposal to republish the Vatican II documents with new translations with inclusive language and new commentaries. The committee will conclude its study at its meeting the next morning. They will then forward their recommendations to the Board for further decision.

3. The Vice President, as chair of the Committee on Resolutions, reported that no resolutions had been received by the committee prior to the convention. The Board had discussed several issues of concern but had decided not to present any motions. As a result, there are no resolutions to be presented by the committee.

President's Report

1. The President expressed words of appreciation and thanks to various Officers and Members of the Board who are leaving the Board at this time: to Mary Hines who has served as Treasurer for six years; to Kenneth Himes and Ellen Leonard who have fulfilled their two-year terms as Board Members; and to Michael McGinniss who has served so well as Executive Secretary and must now resign before his term expires because he has been named President of Christian Brothers University in Memphis.

2. The President read a letter of Bishop Leibrecht's reporting on the status of the Proposed Ordinances for the implementation of Ex Corde Ecclesiae. It seems that a further round of consultations is being planned.
3. At its meeting on Thursday the Board of Directors appointed Maryanne Stevens of Creighton University the new Executive Secretary of the Society. She will be here on Sunday to take part in the Board’s postconvention meeting.

4. Robert Wister, chair of the Committee on the History of the Society, submitted a lengthy report on his work during the past year with the CTSA archives. He plans to publish in the course of the anniversary year a seventy-page history of the CTSA together with various facts, statistics, etc.

New Business

The President then asked the members present whether there was any new business to be handled. Mary Aquin O’Neill and Roger Haight rose to remind everyone about the convention liturgy and the Friday evening Open Forum session. With no other business to be addressed the President entertained a motion to adjourn. The business meeting of this forty-ninth annual convention was adjourned at 6:00 P.M.
